Post-2000 Specified Poetry

Stillwater Cove

It seemed a furtive magic—sun ricocheting off cresting waves near Stillwater Cove, the soft rock cliffs of sandstone and clay, the wind-tilted cypress trees leaning toward the blue Pacific—and it was only you who'd see them. A migrating pod of gray whales going northward, new calves in tow, shooting a spray of frothy expelled water from their blowholes and making a show of breaching in the clear spring air off the coastline.

We'd whine that we never caught a glimpse of a slick back or tail slap, nary a spy-hopping head raised above the swirling surface. Too young to look outward for long, we'd lower our eyes toward what lived small, the alligator lizard in the coyote brush, the bracken fern, orange monkey flower, the beach fly, the earwig, the tick.

It was your trick, always a whale as soon as our heads went down. Had to have been a lie: they'd come up while we zeroed in on Mexican sage or the monarch. Distracted by the evidence of life at our feet, we had no time for the waiting that was required. To watch the waves until the whales surfaced seemed a maddening task. Now, I am in the inland air that smells of smoke and gasoline, the trees blown leafless by wind. Could you refuse me if I asked you to point again at the horizon, to tell me something was worth waiting for?

Out of the Bag

1

All of us came in Doctor Kerlin's bag.
He'd arrive with it, disappear to the room
And by the time he'd reappear to wash

Those nosy, rosy, big, soft hands of his
In the scullery basin, its lined insides (The colour of a spaniel's inside lug)

Were empty for all to see, the trap-sprung mouth Unsnibbed and gaping wide. Then like a hypnotist Unwinding us, he'd wind the instruments

Back into their lining, tie the cloth Like an apron round itself, Darken the door and leave

With the bag in his hand, a plump ark by the keel...
Until the next time came and in he'd come In his fur-lined collar that was also spaniel-coloured

And go stooping up to the room again, a whiff
Of disinfectant, a Dutch interior gleam
Of waistcoat satin and highlights on the forceps.

Getting the water ready, that was next –
Not plumping hot, and not lukewarm, but soft, Sud-luscious, saved for him from the rain-butt

And savoured by him afterwards, all thanks Denied as he towelled hard and fast,
Then held his arms out suddenly behind him

To be squired and silk-lined into the camel coat.
At which point he once turned his eyes upon me, Hyperborean, beyond-the-north-wind blue,

Two peepholes to the locked room I saw into Every time his name was mentioned, skimmed Milk and ice, swabbed porcelain, the white

And chill of tiles, steel hooks, chrome surgery tools
And blood dreeps in the sawdust where it thickened
At the foot of each cold wall. And overhead

The little, pendent, teat-hued infant parts Strung neatly from a line up near the ceiling –
A toe, a foot and shin, an arm, a cock

A bit like the rosebud in his buttonhole.

Poeta doctus Peter Levi says Sanctuaries of Asclepius (called asclepions)
 Were the equivalent of hospitals

In ancient Greece. Or of shrines like Lourdes, Says poeta doctus Graves. Or of the cure
 By poetry that cannot be coerced,

Say I, who realized at Epidaurus
 That the whole place was a sanatorium With theatre and gymnasium and baths,

A site of incubation, where 'incubation'
 Was technical and ritual, meaning sleep
 When epiphany occurred and you met the god...

Hatless, groggy, shadowing myself
 As the thurifer I was in an open-air procession
 In Lourdes in '56

When I nearly fainted from the heat and fumes, Again I nearly fainted as I bent
 To pull a bunch of grass and hallucinated

Doctor Kerlin at the steamed-up glass Of the scullery window, starting in to draw
 With his large pink index finger dot-faced men

With button-spots in a straight line down their fronts
 And women with dot breasts, giving them all A set of droopy sausage-arms and legs

That soon began to run. And then as he dipped and laved
 In the generous suds again, miraculum:
 The baby bits all came together swimming

Into his soapy big hygienic hands
 And I myself came to, blinded with sweat, Blinking and shaky in the windless light.

Bits of the grass I pulled I posted off
 To one going into chemotherapy
 And one who had come through. I didn't want

To leave the place or link up with the others.
 It was midday, mid-May, pre-tourist sunlight
 In the precincts of the god,

The very site of the temple of Asclepius.
 I wanted nothing more than to lie down Under hogweed, under seeded grass

And to be visited in the very eye of the day
 By Hygeia, his daughter, her name still clarifying
 The haven of light she was, the undarkening door.

The room I came from and the rest of us all came from Stays pure reality where I stand alone, Standing the passage of time, and she's asleep

In sheets put on for the doctor, wedding presents That showed up again and again, bridal And usual and useful at births and deaths.

Me at the bedside, incubating for real,
 Peering, appearing to her as she closes
 And opens her eyes, then lapses back

Into a faraway smile whose precinct of vision
 I would enter every time, to assist and be asked In that hoarsened whisper of triumph,

'And what do you think Of the new wee baby the doctor brought for us all
 When I was asleep?'

From the Journal of a Disappointed Man

I discovered these men driving a new pile into the pier. There was all the paraphernalia of chains, pulleys, cranes, ropes and, as I said, a wooden pile, a massive affair, swinging over the water on a long wire hawser. Everything else was in the massive style as well, even the men; very powerful men; very ruminative and silent men ignoring me.

Speech was not something to interest them, and if they talked at all it was like this – 'Let go', or 'Hold tight': all monosyllables. Nevertheless, by paying close attention to the obscure movements of one working on a ladder by the water's edge, I could tell that for all their strength and experience these men were up against a great difficulty.

I cannot say what. Every one of the monsters was silent on the subject – baffled I thought at first, but then I realised indifferent and tired, so tired of the whole business.

The man nearest to me, still saying nothing but crossing his strong arms over his chest, showed me that for all he cared the pile could go on swinging until the crack of Doom.

I should say I watched them at least an hour and, to do the men justice, their slow efforts to overcome the secret problem did continue – then gradually slackened and finally ceased.

One massive man after another abandoned his position and leaned on the iron rail to gaze down like a mystic into the water. No one spoke; no one said what they saw;

though one fellow did spit, and with round eyes followed the trajectory of his brown bolus (he had been chewing tobacco) on its slow descent into the same depths.

The foreman, and the most original thinker, smoked a cigarette to relieve the tension. Afterwards, and with a heavy kind of majesty, he turned on his heel and walked away.

With this eclipse of interest, the incident was suddenly closed. First in ones and twos, then altogether, the men followed. That left the pile still in mid-air, and me of course.
