Answer all questions.

1. Scenario: Gangs of youths are loitering in the streets of the town of Hart. Some members of these gangs are intimidating residents and committing crimes. The Hart Mail, a local newspaper, has published an interview with one of the gang members. In this interview, the gang member blames the police, boredom and a lack of money as causes of these crimes. In addition, the newspaper reports daily that there are significant increases in street robberies and thefts from local shops. This has created a moral panic and several residents are forming an action committee that is campaigning to have something done about these gangs.

- (a) (i) Briefly describe one sociological theory of criminality. [4]

3. Scenario: Professor Barker is a highly respected criminologist. She has written a research paper on 21st-century crimes that focuses on theories of criminality and the crime control methods that have been implemented because of these theories. Her research paper revealed that the number of technological crimes has significantly increased over the past ten years.

Professor Barker's research was inspired by the experiences of her cousin Harry: he is currently serving a five-year prison sentence for committing white-collar crimes.

- (a) Briefly describe the types of crimes that may have been committed by Harry. [4]
